

BB HB Xanthos Hotel

Just around the corner from Kalkan's main marina is another inlet of the Mediterranean, known as Kalamar Bay. On the headland jutting into the little haven stands the Hotel Xanthos.

Hotel Xanthos draws its name from the Lycian capital of 3,000 years ago and the exterior and interior styling recalls the opulence of the grandest days of the civilisation. On arrival you will be greeted beneath an ornate chandelier suspended from a huge stained glass atrium which is a splendid way to start your holiday. Marble floors, imposing lifesize statues and elegant balustrades all combine to create a sense of life in the smart lane.

There is a large seawater swimming pool, with Jacuzzi pool and children's pool overlooked by the snack bar and the terrace restaurant. There are stunning views of the mountains to one side and the sea to the other.

Club Xanthos has all facilities for a relaxing holiday including a fitness centre and at a small additional cost, Turkish bath, Sauna and tennis. There are a couple of restaurants nearby.

The attractive rooms are set in separate blocks, connected by steps and walkways, two of which are situated at the other side of the road from the main building. Each is tastefully decorated and air-conditioned with telephone, satellite TV, minibar, balcony and ensuite shower and WC. Most have a sea view. Suites are also available, which have 2 sofa beds in the sitting room and can be used as a family room.

Hotel Xanthos most certainly maintains the finest traditions of comfort enjoyed by its Lycian forefathers. And even though it offers the seclusion of a quiet cove adjoining Kalkan bay, it is only a short taxi ride which is 1.5 km from the village centre.
